Robert Kline

Lights, Camera, Action! Jews and the birth of the Silver Screen

Facing employment discrimination in many areas in the early Twentieth Century, some Jewish immigrants turned to the film industry to use their creative talents. Hear Robert Kline tell the fascinating stories of how the Warner brothers, Samuel Goldwyn, Louis B. Meyer, and others contributed to the fledgling Hollywood scene.

Robert Kline's long, distinguished history in the entertainment industry includes executive Vice-President of 20th Century Fox and co-founder of Lifetime Television. He also produced First Works, discussing the great directors of our times, including Martin Scorsese, Spike Jones, and Robert Zemeckis, and "That's Hollywood" for ABC. Among his many credits is Oliver Stone's highly acclaimed film "Heaven and Earth." "The Kennedys: America's Emerald Kings," soon to be released with Warner Brothers, was both produced and directed by Mr. Kline.
